SUMMER 2018

INVESTING IN

EXPANDING THE IMPACT. CREATING ENLIGHTENING EXPERIENCES.

Michigan Legacy Art Park

FROM THE PRESIDENT

After thirty-two inches of snow in April, spring was more welcome than ever this year. Because with it has come vibrant new life and a wonderful flurry of activity in the Art Park. Artist programs and special tours have already been enjoyed by many, and a record number of students—over 1,300 this school year—are making discoveries in the park on their school field trips.

This year, we have been ruminating on the idea of “stewardship.” The term may conjure different meanings for different people, but to me it is a reminder to care for the park and all its visitors. We are doing this by investing in art and programs; expanding the scope of our outreach; and providing educational experiences that enlighten visitors of all ages. Stewardship also reminds us of the important responsibility to refine and improve the park, and to preserve it for the long-term.

In these pages, you will see the results of good stewardship in action: the positive and productive efforts of staff, board members, volunteers, and generous donors. You also play a part, whenever you share your Art Park experience with someone in your life.

So I hope you are making plans now for your next visit. There are plenty of wonderful ways to experience Michigan Legacy Art Park this year!

SAWPATH NO 1 BY DAVID BARR

DAVID BARR LEGACY ARTIST RESIDENCY

Michigan Legacy Art Park has expanded the artist-in-residence program to create the David Barr Legacy Artist Residency. This new opportunity for artists is inspired by the work and life of sculptor and Art Park founder David Barr.

A collaboration with Villa Barr—a City of Novi park and the namesake's storied former home—increases opportunities for artists from diverse backgrounds to explore their work, and also broadens the scope for both organizations to host multiple residencies throughout the year.

It is an exciting development for an already successful program that invests in artists and involves community enrichment and educational experiences.

INTERNATIONAL SCULPTURE DAY

On April 28, seven artists—including Artistic Director, Kaz McCue—visited the Art Park for a special International Sculpture Day tour. It was extremely interesting and insightful to hear stories and processes firsthand from Kaz, Dewey Blocksma, David Petrakovitz, Sergio De Guisti, Kathy Rose Pizzo, Bill Allen, and Eric Troffkin.

WEeping WILLOW BY LES SCRUGGS

WEeping WILLOW

A beautiful wood sculpture by northern Michigan artist Les Scruggs was recently added to the Art Park's permanent collection. Weeping Willow sits at the center of Sanctuary, and together provide a contemplative space for viewers.

WATER BROUGHT THE TREES

Pamela Ayers was invited to create an ephemeral sculpture, Water Brought The Trees. The boat-shaped installation, composed from materials found in nature, seems to float through the wildflowers growing around the trailhead.

CHRIS OLSZEWSKI

Foundation Studies professor at Savannah College of Art and Design and active member of the Chippewas of Mnjikaning First Nation, Chris Olszewski visited Michigan Legacy Art Park as part of his "Vision Quest" project, "an ongoing investigation into cultural identity and the ever-changing landscape." He led public hands-on art programs and spent four days working with hundreds of area students as part of his week-long residency at the Art Park.

EQUATION/BARR PARK

Equation, a sculpture by Art Park founder David Barr was recently donated to the park from the City of Novi. This beautiful work will be displayed on loan at the new Barr Park at Crystal Mountain.

EQUATION BY DAVID BARR

CASS CORRIDOR COMES NORTH

An exhibit of work by Detroit artist Robert Sestok will be installed at the Art Park this June. Sestok is one of several artists who came to prominence as part of the Cass Corridor movement, which is considered by many as the only major 20th century art movement to emerge from Detroit.

A 2017 Kresge Visual Arts Fellow, Bob's work is held in numerous collections and has been exhibited at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Museum of Contemporary Art (Chicago), Cranbrook Museum of Art, and Marianne Boesky Gallery (New York City), among others. Over three decades of his work can also be seen at City Sculpture Park, a public art space he opened in 2015.

Sestok's work will be on display at Michigan Legacy Art Park through spring 2020.

POURING INTO THE NEXT GENERATION

Marquette artist Theresa Smith completed a highly successful residency at the Art Park this past fall.

In addition to time spent on her own artwork, Theresa visited five area high school art classes, including Brethren, Frankfort, Kingsley, Mesick, and the Leelanau School. She was able to teach the students about the iron casting process, its history, and the science behind it.

The students used simple tools to scratch their own designs into square molds and then had the opportunity to see the molds poured with molten iron at a spectacular iron pour event.

Many people from the community came to see this dynamic process in action. Dozens of volunteers were on hand to make the day successful. They helped with everything from preparation, pouring, and breaking away the molds once they were cast.

This artist residency was a perfect demonstration of the lasting impact that happens when various components of the Art Park mission are integrated into a single program.

THIS PROGRAM WAS AN IMPACTFUL ENRICHMENT ACTIVITY FOR MY STUDENTS BECAUSE IT CONNECTED ART, HISTORY, CAREER OPPORTUNITIES, AND SO MUCH MORE.

— Kristine Harvey, Art Teacher, Frankfort-Elberta Public Schools

FRANKFORT STUDENT GABE JOHNSON WITH HIS SCULPTURE TILTED TOWERS

HIGH SCHOOL EXHIBIT

A new exhibit of artwork created by area high school students was on display during the month of May. The exhibit featured sculptural work contributed by students from four schools: Frankfort High School, Interlochen Arts Academy, The Leelanau School, and Brethren High School. The pieces created by Amanda Mobley's students at Brethren were the result of a three-day, in-school Art Park workshop with artist Dewey Blocksma. With the artist's own Wheels of Progress as an inspirational starting point, the students learned about forces of nature and kinetic sculpture while creating their own "whirligig" wind machines.

ARTS FOR ALL

On a beautiful April day this year, Arts for All of Northern Michigan helped 60 individuals visit the Art Park on field trips. It was a fun and memorable experience for all the participants and an extremely rewarding one for the staff and volunteers who were involved.

IDENTIFICATION + CREATIVITY

The Art Park field trip program is experiencing tremendous growth right now. Over 1,300 students visited the park on field trips this school year.

Identification + Creativity is one theme teachers can choose for their students' Art Park experience. Students learn to identify trees, birds, rocks, and other species in nature by recognizing elements of line, color, and texture.

They also learn how these elements are used to create, discuss, and evaluate art. Sculptures like Frog by William Allen and David Barr's Transit Survey serve as excellent starting points to facilitate discussions both in the park and the classroom.

MEET PATRICIA INNIS

Behind the field trips, workshops, and education programs is Education Director, Patricia Innis. Patricia has a long history with the Art Park, and in addition to her valuable work as Education Director, she is the artist behind four environmental installations in the park: Robins!, Hemmingway Haunts, Serpent Mound, and Logging Camp.

This spring—thanks to funding from the Jewell Arts Program—Patricia spent four days with Kristine Harvey's students at Frankfort-Elberta Elementary. The students love learning about themselves and nature while creating pine cone birds and nests, and constructing their own "special place" models from found materials.

CREATE A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

JOIN THE LEGACY SOCIETY

You can make an impact at Michigan Legacy Art Park now and in the future.

Over two-thirds of our annual operating budget is supported by gifts from people like you. We rely on donations from individuals, corporate sponsorships, and foundation grants to implement the mission-driven activities happening now. Thank you!

Future gifts allow for predictable cash flows so we can focus on our mission by reducing the amount of resources we put into annual fundraising activities. You can help by adding Michigan Legacy Art Park as a beneficiary of your will, trust, or life insurance policy; or by making a gift to the Michigan Legacy Art Park Endowment Fund at the Grand Traverse Regional Community Foundation.
